we were just not able to communicate. Every simple talk turned into an argument and shouting match. After five years of this torture, I developed enough courage to contact Dr Deol. After he started working with me, I realised the minefields that we both were unconsciously stepping on. Now we are beginning to , at least discuss our problems with each other..

I was crushed, when I got to know. Deepak was having an affair with my friend.I didn't know what to do and lashed out at him at every small pretext. My health , daughter and work was getting affected. Dr Deol has helped me , put things in perspective,control my emotional outbursts, and things are slowly getting in place

My wife and I had been constantly arguing and getting at each other's nerves for months, including in front of our of our two children. We visited Dr Deol and things started improving almost immediately, as he made us realise that we were not meeting the needs of each other. Dr Deol is a great therapist, worth every penny spent
